

Unist, Inc. respects your privacy

Safeguarding your privacy is important to us, especially on the Internet. This policy is to let you know about our online information practices and how we treat the information we receive about you from the Internet.

Information Gathering

In general, you can browse our Web site without telling us who you are or revealing any personal information about yourself. We are, however, able to determine your IP address. An IP address is a numeric identification that is assigned to each computer browser accessing the Internet. This IP address cannot identify you personally, however, when combined with the information provided by your Internet Service Provider (ISP), we are able to identify the computer originating the message.

We use this information to track the number of unique visits to our site, the number of repeat visits and what areas of our site are visited. This data collection is a lot like Nielsen Ratings that inform television networks how many people tuned into a particular program. We use this information only in aggregate, or collected format, to help us better administer our Web site, measure its use and improve the content and your experience on the site.

Personal Information

The request and contact forms on our Web site require you to share personal information such as your name, address and e-mail address. We use this information for processing your order or responding to your questions. It may also be used for marketing research and other marketing purposes, or for providing you with the latest service and promotional information that might be useful to you. We will never give or sell this information to any other company for its use in marketing or solicitation. If you have provided us with this information and do not wish to receive further information from Unist, Inc., send us an e-mail to tell us that you do not want to receive further communications. We may be reached at salesupport@unist.com.

Improving Your Experience

From time to time, we may invite you to fill out surveys or solicit your feedback about the Web site, our services or products. We will use this information to make improvements and provide you with a better business experience.

Use Common Sense with ALL of Your Online Activities

Even the best policies and practices cannot always protect your privacy and security. Dishonest advertisers, hackers and scam artists constantly search the Internet for new targets. Your best protection is to use common sense in all of your online activities. Understand that e-mail is inherently an insecure form of communication. Sometimes it is possible for third parties to illegally intercept your unencrypted messages. Be sure to give your e-mail address in circumstances in which it is safe to do so. Make sure you always verify the identity of anyone asking for your personal information. Do not give out your screen name, password, social security number or credit card number to someone you do not know.
